Dear Acting Director Vaeth:

The Government Charge Card Abuse Prevention Act of 2012 (Charge Card Act)¹, as implemented by Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Appendix B to Circular No. A-123, A Risk Management Framework for Government Charge Card Programs, requires Inspectors General of executive agencies with more than $10,000,000 in annual purchase card and/or $10,000,000 in travel card spending to conduct periodic assessments of agency purchase card, convenience check, and travel card programs to identify and analyze risks of illegal, improper, or erroneous purchases and payments. Offices of Inspectors General use these risk assessments to determine the necessary scope, frequency, and number of audits or reviews of these programs. This letter responds to this reporting requirement for the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) for fiscal year (FY) 2025.

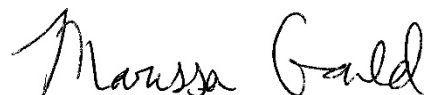

The objective of our FY 2024 assessment of the FTC's charge card program was to identify and analyze the risk of illegal, improper, or erroneous purchases and payments, as well as determine the scope, frequency, and number of periodic audits of charge card activity that we would plan to conduct. Our assessment included an analysis of all FY 2024 charge card (i.e., purchase card, travel card, and centrally billed account) activity.

Based on our risk assessment of FY 2024 activity, the OIG has identified the FTC charge card program's overall risk level—including of illegal, improper, and erroneous purchases made through the FTC's purchase card program—as low. As a result, the OIG does not currently plan to conduct audit work over the FTC's charge card program in FY 2025. The OIG also did not conduct charge card program audit work in FY 2024 and there are no open prior recommendations related to the programs. We will continue to periodically assess risks over the FTC's purchase and travel card programs to determine whether we should conduct future audits or reviews.

The OIG appreciates the cooperation and courtesies extended to us by the FTC Financial Management Office during the course of this assessment. If you have any questions or concerns regarding this report, please contact me at (202) 326-2507, or by email at mgould1@ftc.gov.
