Commission Employee Violates Conflict of Interest Policy

DATE ISSUED 02.08.2016

CNCS-OIG investigators received information from CNCS Management that a Nevada Commission employee may have financially gained from the AmeriCorps sub-grantee when the employee accepted item(s) from the sub-grantee for the employee's privately own business.

CNCS-OIG investigators discovered that a commission employee violated the commission's conflict of interest policy when the employee received a small item from the sub-grantee for his personal business. The commission's executive director reported that although the employee had reported his personal relationship with the sub-grantee, the employee failed to inform the executive director she received the item from the sub-grantee, as required by their conflict of interest policy.

The individual was counselled and received a written letter of understanding concerning conflicts of interest.
